1. About the beginning of [REDACTED] a prominent German doctor was called to see a patient in a castle west of Potsdam, described as a "G.P.U. compound". He subsequently stated that he recognized the patient as Marshal Lavrenti P. Beria.
 2. Beria was suffering from a severe kidney ailment. The doctor declined to operate, in view of the patient's corpulence, assuring the high Soviet officers who had summoned him that the illness represents no immediate danger to Beria's life.
 3. Beria returned to Moscow by air on 4 December.
